RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research focuses on the study of local structure-property relationship in crystalline, non-crystalline, and nanocrystalline materials at the sub-nanometer length scale using x-ray, neutron, and electron diffraction techniques, including atomic pair distribution function (PDF) and atomic electron tomography (AET) methods. I am one of the first committee members of the local structure and total scattering technique committee of the Chinese Crystallographic Society (IUCr, CCRS), which was founded in October 2023.
